Animals in Heaven?: Catholics Want to Know! - Susi Pittman ...

Skeptics claim that the Bible doesn’t say animals go to heaven. While Scripture makes no direct statement on the matter, it does offer some hints or suggestions. For example, see Isaiah 65:25: “The wolf and the lamb will feed together, and the lion will eat straw like the ox, but dust will be the serpent’s food.

Animals Do Go to Heaven - Catholic Stand

The Catechism of the Catholic Church says animals are God’s creation. God saved the animals on Noah’s Ark. Since animals can’t sin I believe that if their owners make it to Heaven then they will too. “All Creation” is stated in the Bible, as to who will be saved.

Are There Animals in Heaven? - Catholic Stand

Despite the fact Pope Benedict XVI, a cat lover, said in a 2008 homily that animals “are not called to heaven,” Pope Francis teaches in his encyclical Laudato Si’ (“On Care for Our Common Home”), “Eternal life will be a shared experience of awe, in which each creature, resplendently transfigured, will take its rightful place” (No. 243).

Do pets go to heaven? | Simply Catholic

Therefore, no non-human animal would be able to experience “heaven” as defined. Perhaps our pets won’t exist in heaven in the sense of experiencing the Beatific Vision, but could they simply exist in the “new heaven and new earth” (see CCC 1043; 2 Pet. 3:13; Rev. 21:1)?

Do Pets Go to Heaven? | Catholic Answers

Animals belong in the "new earth", as much as trees. C. S. Lewis supposes that animals are saved "in" their masters, as part of their extended family. Only tamed animals would be saved in this way. It would seem more likely that wild animals are in Heaven too, since wildness, otherness, not-mine-ness, is a proper pleasure for us.
