Excesses is a very successful attempt to break out of the closets in which we conceptualize our identity and our eros. Lingis has travelled to, and participated in, some of the last remaining oases of "primitive" cultures. He combines an obvious poet's eye with a not-so-obvious philosophical ability to discriminate systematically and to generalize.

Afternote: Professor Alfonso Lingis, in his book Excesses: Eros and Culture (SUNY, 1983), describes a high culture that did not repressively rechannel (aka "sublimate") sexual energy. It was in central India in the tenth and eleventh centuries: Khajuraho (op. cit., Chap.3). If Lingis is correct, then we have empirical evidence that Freud's ...
